

TRIP TO THE WEST

Scenery of the Northwest Territory.

MR. ARIS' VIVID DESCRIPTION

Of a Trip to Washington-Kittie Falls. Excellent Prospects for a Great Commercial Future.

"I left Chicago just about one year ago for Kittie Falls and the great northwest," said General Manager Aris of the Rochester & Kittie Falls land company in the lobby of the Morton last evening, "and the journey was one of the most delightful that I have ever had in America. I had in charge an excursion party of sixty of the foremost citizens of Rochester and western New York. We were bound west to see the country and incidentally to prospect for speculations."

Our first great attraction in our western journey was that curious and interesting territory of western North Dakota and eastern Montana called the "Bad Lands." Little conical hills, called "hoods," rising to a sharp point, and scattered by land slides, and ravines, revealing at different altitudes veins of coal and strata of many colored minerals—white, red and gray—and short ridges of hills, separated by deep gorges, are the features of the strange country. Masses of rock of all sizes and shapes, scanty herbage, pools of alkali water, mingle in wild confusion. It seems a battle field of nature's great forces, where earthquake, deluge and fire have contended in fierce strife, and left scattered on the field the evidences of the fight.

Beautiful Valley scenery. Night closed in amid these scenes and morning found us in full view of snowy ranges of the Rocky mountains. Then followed a day's ride through this mountain country. Trees became plenty, occasional beautiful streams appeared. Wide valleys and fertile stretches of prairie, dotted with herds of horses and cattle, gave interest to the varying landscape across Montana. As we came to the summit of the Rockies the scenery became indescribably bold and savage. Towering peaks, rocky ranges, deep gorges made the outlook awfully sublime. Our journey across Montana, along the picturesque Yellowstone, was one of the most delightful that I have ever had. The scenery is unsurpassed in America or Europe for grandeur and beauty.

At Livingston passengers for the Yellowstone National park leave the Northern Pacific and journey southward. Our course took us due west to the world-famous city of Helena, the richest city of its size upon the globe. From Helena we proceeded through the heat of the Rockies to the divide and the famous Mullan tunnel, amidst scenes of undisturbed sublimity and beauty. Garrison, Drummond and Missoula, all thrifty young cities were passed in their order by our flying train, our next stop of importance being Hope, Idaho, the point at which the change of standard time is made. This city is situated upon the famous Lake Pend d'Oreille, one of the most picturesque lakes of this picturesque country.

The Couer d'Alene mines, which are figuring so conspicuously in the news columns of the papers just now in connection with the miners' strike in that country, are located here. Also the famous Wallace, Mullen and Burke mines.

"In many respects Spokane Falls is the most interesting city in that region today. The town had less than 1,000 inhabitants in 1885 and today it has 31,000. In 1889 it was literally destroyed by fire, so completely so that the inhabitants were obliged to dwell and to do business under canvas. It became a city of tents. Today, however, it is one of the most substantial cities in the entire country. Its streets are broad and well paved, and it contains every facility for healthful and comfortable living that any eastern city can boast of. It is the natural distributing and supply point for a vast and very rich territory. Like Grand Rapids it lies on two sides of the river. Connecting the two parts of the city is a fine steel bridge.

"One hundred miles to the northwest upon the Spokane Falls & Northern railway is the young and vigorous city of Kittie Falls upon the Columbia river.

The Colville Reservation. Adjacent to these cities are the famous Colville reservation, the Palouse country and the Big Lost country. All of this territory is rich in agricultural, lumber and mineral lands, and awaits only the influx of a vigorous population to realize stupendous advancements. Spokane Falls today is the wholesale city of this territory, and is supplying the intermediate towns with all necessary commodities. The near future will find Kittie Falls in the same role, supplying the rich Colville reservation territory, when it shall be opened to settlement, and other contiguous towns. From Kittie Falls the Spokane Falls & Northern road extends to the Dalles, on Arrow lake. From there steamers connect with the Canadian Pacific at Revelstoke, British Columbia.

This line of road, popularly known as D. C. Corby's road, is rapidly advancing in importance, and is destined to be one of the mighty factors in the development of the great state of Washington.

"Westward from Spokane the Northern Pacific proceeds through the great Pacific country, along the blue waters of the majestic Columbia, to Portland, Oregon. Another branch makes north, piercing the Yukon country, a territory rich in mineral and agricultural possibilities.

The nearest route to Tacoma, Seattle and Olympia is by this road from Pasco. Our excursion train left Rochester April 27 and returned May 20. We made 5,500 miles of distance without a mishap or accident of any kind, and enjoyed perfect health throughout."

AKLINGTON'S MEN. They Have a Little Friendly Scrap About Pay.

K. E. Arlington, a contractor who has the contract for constructing a sewer in Fifth avenue, swore out a warrant yesterday for the arrest of Michael Fisher, Koe Muma, Sam Smith, John Hamilton and Fred Schroeder, on a charge of assault and battery. The men were arrested and locked up at the police station. They were employed by him and had relinquished their services with him on Tuesday morning. Yesterday they demanded their pay, and Arlington told them he would pay them next Wednesday, the regular pay day. The men were not satisfied with the stand-off, and attempted to take it away from him by force. He escaped from them and found refuge in No. 7 engine house. This is the story as told by Arlington when he appeared at police headquarters.

Ed Hoagland Skips Out. Ed Hoagland didn't answer to his name when called by Sheriff Holmes in police court yesterday morning on a charge of larceny. He had been released on bail furnished by his father. It is believed that he has skipped with Julia Arnold, who was arrested as an accomplice in receiving stolen goods. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest, and one is also out for Mrs. Arnold, who failed to respond last Monday when her case was called in court. Young Hoagland is 20 years old and Mrs. Arnold is about 50.

Sued on Two Notes. Jeremiah S. Hyland began two suits in the circuit court yesterday against James S. Maloney to recover payment on two promissory notes. One note was given August 8, 1888, payable one year after date. It was for $150 and was endorsed by Maloney. The second was given July 7, 1891, for $108, payable six months after date. This note was endorsed by R. J. Kennedy. The suits are made co-respondents to the suits.

Glenn Held for Trial. Yesterday Justice Brown held John Glenn to the circuit court for trial on a charge of larceny from the person. Glenn was arrested at the Kent park races as a pickpocket. He was remanded to jail in default of $500 bonds.

Marriage Was a Failure. Annie M. Tracey was divorced from Frank Tracey yesterday by Judge Adair on the grounds of cruelty, drunkenness and non-support. The defendant was forbidden to remarry within two years from the date of the decree.

Court Notes. Douglass Blakney, the young Cannon township farmer who was arrested for whaling his brother-in-law, Will Ward, was arraigned before Justice Brown yesterday and pleaded not guilty. He will have an examination today.

Yesterday City Attorney Taylor filed papers in the superior court for condemning that portion of the Grandville avenue gravel road lying within the city limits.

Police Court Notes. Joseph Quinn was arraigned in police court yesterday on a warrant, charging him with the crime of larceny from a dwelling in the day time. He pleaded not guilty and his examination was set for July 25 at 9 a. m.

Alexander Douglas' saloon case was adjourned again yesterday until Saturday, July 23.

LAW AND LAWYERS.

Circuit Court—Part II. JUDGE ADIR. Eugene Chapin and Theodore N. Chapin vs. Benjamin E. Burt, et al., chancery; cause taken under advisement.

THE AGE OF PAPER.

The Time Is Coming When Paper Will Be the Only Useful Thing.

The world has seen its iron age and its brazen age, but this is the age of paper. We are making so many things of paper that it will soon be true that without paper there is nothing made. We live in paper houses, wear paper clothing, and sit on paper cushions in paper cars rolling on paper wheels. If we lived in Bergen, Norway, we could go on Sundays to a paper church.

We do a paper business over paper counters, buying paper goods, paying for them with paper money, and deal in paper stocks on paper margins. We row races in paper boats for paper prizes. We go to paper theaters where paper actors play to paper audiences.

As the age develops the coming man will become more deeply enmeshed in the paper net. He will awake in the morning and creep from under the paper clothing of his paper bed and put on his paper dressing gown and his paper slippers. He will walk over paper carpets, down paper stairs, and seating himself in a paper chair will read the paper news in the morning paper. A paper bell will call him to his breakfast, cooked in a paper oven, served on paper dishes, laid on a paper cloth on a paper table. He will wipe his lips with a paper napkin, and having put on his paper shoes, paper hat and paper coat, and then taking his paper stick (he has the choice of two descriptions already), he will walk on a paper pavement or ride in a paper carriage to his paper office. He will organize paper enterprises and make paper profits.

He will sail the ocean on paper steamships and navigate the air in paper balloons. He will smoke a paper cigar or paper tobacco in a paper pipe, lighted with a paper match. He will write with a paper pencil, whistle paper sticks with a paper knife, go fishing with a paper fishing rod, a paper line and a paper hook, and put his catch in a paper basket. He will go shooting with a paper gun, loaded with paper cartridges, and will defend his country in paper forts with paper cannon and paper shells. Having lived his paper life and achieved a paper fortune and paper wealth, he will retire to paper leisure and die in paper peace. There will be a paper funeral, at which the mourners, dressed in paper crepe, will wipe their eyes with paper handkerchiefs, and the preacher will preach in a paper pulpit. He will lie in a paper coffin; he has a chance of doing so already if he is a paper—we mean pauper. He will be wrapped in a paper shroud, his name will be engraved on a paper plate, and a paper hearse, adorned with paper plumes, will carry him to a paper lined grave, over which will be raised a paper monument—"Paper Record."

About What to Eat.

If asked what I would place of highest importance in family diet I would answer without hesitation abundance of fruit. The apple is far more invaluable than we have yet estimated. It should be eaten before meals, and not after. Not a member of my family, myself included, but eats one, two or more before breakfast so long as they are obtainable, and as many before dinner—about half an hour before the meal. As soon as the fruit is begun we stop all study or work, and spend the half hour in sport or walking or conversation.

After meals we rest in the same manner for one hour. No child is allowed to study during this time. Nothing is lost, for the head is thus kept out of conflict with the stomach. Cereals, next to fruit, are of prime importance. I recommend highly such preparations as parched farinose—any food where the cooking is done before the grinding. Gofia and granules are of this sort. As for meat, it must be at each one's option to be sure, but let us be sparing in our carnivorous tastes.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Fraudulent Jewels.

Since solutions of aniline dyes possess the property of imparting to genuine jewels as well as glass paste a deep, rich color if left long enough immersed in them, and since they possess also the property of imparting precisely the characteristic color of a genuine jewel, the swindler has it not only in his power to dye cut glass paste, but also inferior cut gems, of the color of a ruby, an emerald or a sapphire, since fuchsin is the handsomest ruby red shade, while bleu de Paris imitates absolutely that of the sapphire, and aniline green that of the emerald.

Such a fraud, however, can be made still more complicated by using genuine off colored rubies, sapphires or emeralds and dyeing them with the corresponding aniline dyes, thereby raising their value tenfold. It is exceedingly difficult to recognize this fraud, because the color of such a well corroded jewel can no longer be washed off, even with hot water. Only the bleaching power of sunlight might after a time assist in revealing the swindle.—Jewelers' Circular.

THE EVENING PRIMROSE.

Sad Evening Primrose, with your silken stole Hummed seductively from your throat. Look from your patient eye! How frail and pale You stand among the flowers! and your bow! Shows like a vanishing phantom of the frail.

Young buds that point a finger to the blue Crown on your stem, and youth and hope are new. While the sap runs; yet scarcely has the sun Warm'd twice upon your petals ere their hue Falls into pallidness of death benign.

And strewn about the grass the blossoms hide The poor discolored fragments of their pride. Or hang disconsolate with drooping red. And clinging, sodden cements, to abide The gradual workings of the Alchemist.

Was it for this you struggled into light? That one brief day should crown a tedious night? Was it for this you felt your way along The paths of natural growth, that from their height Shril death should echo in your triumph song?

It may be so. There are who say the bliss Requires the pain; yet could it be for this (God know) you opened your sweet, patient eyes To see the sun's face once and die in his kiss? For me—ye bloom again in Paradise.—Nina Bayard in Longman's Magazine.

Names and Businesses.

There is at times a peculiar coincidence as regards the name of a man and his business. Such an appropriate name of name to calling is frequently quite accidental. "Sexton Brothers, Undertakers and Upholsters," is the wording of a sign at Long Branch, and a dressmaker on Clinton street, New York, bears the name of N. Nadel (the German for needle). To those who understand German, Schneider will seem an equally appropriate name for a dressmaker, and there are plenty of butchers in town named Metzger, while at least one barber glories in the name of Scheerer. But it seems odd that a Baecher should deal in meat, or that even an Avenue A. Barber should sell beer.

However, when we hear of "Taylor & Cutter," a firm of clothiers, or find that "Stickwell & Co." are mullage makers, there is a strong suspicion of an intentional manufacture of appropriate firm names. And that story about the broker firm of "O. Ketcham & L. Cheatham" has been told so often that one hardly knows whether to credit it or not.—New York Times.

Centralization of Government.

The history of the federal government is one of growing strength and influence. The difference between the intention of the founders of the system and of the existing fact is nearly as great as that between the opinions of Jefferson and moderate Federalists. From the first organization of the government to the present time there has been almost a steady advance toward centralization. This advance has been both aided and retarded by the supreme court; but in the legislative branch of the government and in the popular mind the proportions of the federal government have constantly grown larger. It has not been the tendency of the people of the republic to strengthen the local government at the expense of the general government. On the contrary, the general government has grown at the cost of the states.—Henry L. Nelson in Harper's.

The Nepalese "Kora."

The Nepalese "kora," or heavy curved knife, with the edge on the inner side is familiar to readers of the accounts of our "little wars," in which the Ghorka infantry have taken part. But there is another Nepalese weapon, the "kora," the most strangely shaped sword ever used, which, starting from the hilt about an inch and a half wide, when near the end turns at right angles and expands to six inches. The late Jung Bahadur, a noted expert at all eastern arms and exercises, was able to decapitate a bullock with one blow of the kora.—Chambers' Journal.

Carvings on Easter Island.

The hard volcanic rock of Easter Island is covered with carvings intended to represent human faces, birds, fishes and mythical animals. Fishes and turtles appear common among these sculptures, but the most common figure is a mythical animal, half human in form, with bowed back and long, clawlike legs and arms. According to the natives this symbol was intended to represent the god "Moke-Moke," the great spirit of the sea.—Philadelphia Ledger.

They All Dodged.

A quaint minister once said, "Now, brethren, I propose to throw this hymn book at the man who has been thinking of something other than the sermon." He made the necessary gesture, as though he would hurl the book, and, curiously enough, every man in the congregation ducked his head.—London Tit-Bits.

How One Knows.

A wedding cake off at Tyrone at the unusual hour of 6:45 in the morning. It is unnecessary to add that this was the wedding of a railroad man. Any other kind of a man selecting the same time would have been married at a quarter of 7 o'clock.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

First Wheat in America.

The first wheat raised in the New World was sown on the Island of Iacubella in January, 1494, and on March 30 the ears were gathered.—St. Louis Republic.

When you send your check out of the city to pay bills, write the name and residence of your payee thus: "Pay to John Smith & Co., of Boston." This will put your bank on its guard if presented at the counter.

Changes in an English School.

In 1824 Mr. Milnes Gaskell writes from Eton that an upper boy "got spurs and rode some of us (lower boys) over a leap positively impossible to be leaped over with a person on your back, and every time (which is every time) we cannot accomplish it he spurs us violently, and my thigh is quite sore with the inroads made by those dreadful spurs; my new coat is completely ruined." In the next year Ashley minor, a son of Lord Shaftesbury, died in consequence of a fight which lasted two hours and a quarter on the same evening. The quarrel originated about a seat in the upper school.

Dr. Keate spoke about the sad event to the school three days later; he blamed the boys for letting the fight go on so long, but was not to be "seduced into any nobby pamper peace-at-any-price sentimentalism." He said: "Not that I object to all fighting in itself, on the contrary, I like to see a boy return a blow." Such a state of things has fortunately entirely disappeared; a clergyman, a head master, a doctor of divinity, however much he might feel that the meek acceptance of injuries was not the sign of a keen and generous character, yet would now hesitate to mark fighting with his approval before an audience of boys whom he was bound by statute to instruct in Christian principles.—National Review.

How His Heart Was Won.

When Colonel Van Wyck was running for congress many years ago in the Fifteenth New York district, there was a certain Irishman who steadfastly refused to give the old soldier any encouragement. The colonel was greatly surprised, therefore, when Pat informed him on election day that he had concluded to support him.

"Glad to hear it, glad to hear it," said the colonel. "I rather thought you were against me, Patrick."

"Well, sir," said Patrick, "I wuz, and whin ye stir'd me with pigpen and talked that day for two hours or worse ye didn't budge me a hair's breadth, sir; but after ye wuz gone away I got to thinking you ye reached yer hand over the fence and scratched the pig on the back till he laid down wid the pleasure of it, and I made up me mind that whin a rare colonel was as sociable as that I wasn't the man to vote agin him."—Nebraska State Journal.
